

SEMI-WEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN

FRIDAY, JULY 20, 1888.
W. A. WILGUS, Editor and Proprietor.
J. H. RUST, Associate Editor.
T. E. BARTLEY, Business Manager.

Rats and free whisky form rather a peculiar platform for a Presidential candidate.

It is a little strange that it has not occurred to the paragraphers that Mrs. Cleveland has sat down on the bustle before.

E. W. Bagby, a prominent Republican lawyer of Paducah, has deserted from his party ranks and gone over to the prohibitionists. Mr. Bagby is well-known in this city.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat announces the death in England of the Rev. George Herbert Gleig, the last survivor of the English army at the battle of New Orleans.

In the East the ladies have discarded the bustle. Occasionally you meet an Eastern lady on the train who is up to the style and she looks as peculiar as a perpendicular rain-bow.

A Hebrew beggar appeared in Louisville this week, a phenomenon few people have seen. The Jews are very thrifty, and know how to enjoy life better than any people on the globe.

An able correspondent sends us a county campaign lyric from which we quote the following soul-stirring stanza:

"Meat" will lead us safely through
The wilderness and desert,
When we can be forever free
To vote as suits our notion."

We want those fellows who have been referring to J. Proctor Knott as the "late Governor of Kentucky," to know that there is now even a chance for our commonwealth's chief executive in the world—Ex-Gov. William Sprague, of Rhode Island, is Chief of Police at Narragansett Pier.

If the Democrats keep on insisting that Harrison and Morton mean free whisky they will find on the 6th of November that they will have lost the electoral vote of Kentucky. It will not do for them to preach such a popular doctrine in Kentucky as held by their enemies.—Washington Gazette.

Gen. Lew Wallace is at work on Ben Harrison's biography. They say there is a malady peculiar to literary men which is known as "Deutsch-literarisch-schwaermerekrankheit." When he has completed the sketch no doubt the distinguished literateur will be afflicted with a double and twisted case of this unpronounceable disease.

The Indiana Republican political hand book contains a disclosure which its author doubtless did not intend. He says that with a full and fair vote the Democrats have a plurality of something over 8,000 in the State. This is an accomplished fact, but is a rare admission to be made under the approval of a Republican Committee that is otherwise claiming the State as well as the country.

Marion has a law requiring all male citizens over 15 years of age to work the streets three days in each year. The little city of Crittenden further boasts of having 100 of these laborers. That is nothing. Hopkinsville without any such law has had at least 250 gentlemen who have "worked our streets" persistently for five years and seem pleased with the job.

It was reserved for a Chicago boy to accomplish the impossible feat of setting the river on fire. The Chicago river is, in fact, nothing but grease and animal fats, which have found their way from the slaughter houses. A lighted match thrown into these ingredients soon had the river blazing for several blocks, and the fire boat and two locomotives succeeded in keeping the flames from the more valuable property, but not until about $6,000 worth of dockage had been destroyed.

An Illinois editor went away from home for a time and left his paper under the control of his Democratic wife. The first article she wrote was a double-headed leader which contained the following: "Cleveland will be re-elected President in November by an overwhelming majority. The Democratic party will win because it is right. Cleveland has made the best President the country has ever had, and if every State in the Union would elect none but Democrats there would be less stealing and meanness going on."

The Illinois gentleman will appeal to the courts for a decision on who wears the breeches at his house.

The popular vote in the last three presidential elections will furnish political mathematicians a basis for calculation.

Hayes, 4,931,995 Tilden, 4,384,305 Grant, 4,430,921 Hancock, 4,441,886 Blaine, 4,451,981 Cleveland, 4,514,184

This it will be seen that the gain in the popular vote by the Democrats since the election of 1880 was 25,000 greater than in the Republican ranks. These figures indicate that ceaseless vigilance is still the price of victory; however, we are inclined to the opinion that the Republican party is now like the man who starts down hill and "everything is greased for the occasion." The last ten years has been a transition period in which the people have been coming steadily back to the pure principles of Democracy, and we predict that the next election will be a Waterloo for the enemy.

THE DREAM AND THE REALITY.

The hard-worked clerk, the slavish elior, the sweating laborer have dim, slumberous, sentimental dreams of the pleasures and luxuries of a summer resort. Where they see a more fortunate brother pack his dainty grip and start for Cornucopia, or Dawson, or any other resort, dressed in a catchy flannel suit and patentleathers, they feel like a hungry urchin left over for the second table. There is no air castle more delicately colored, more sweetly flushed with sentiment, more flimsy, more mildly ravishing than this vague, illusory longing after a watering place. The imagination throws some such pictured as this upon the curtain as it sways back and forth under the gentle zephyr's moon-kissed breath like a lady's veil: A young man sitting on the balcony, his patent feet pushed over the railing with a kind of millionaire negligence as they flash back prismatically the evening ichor. He wears a nobby hat aesthetically trimmed. His light unit of rich material manifests an indelible air of wealth. His cigar smoke curls upon the soothing air with a sensuous languor, and he imagines that he is mistaken for a money-devil. He is waiting for his best girl. She comes robed in soft luxuriant folds of whiteness and the vision is lost in rich depth of lace and loopings which seem almost to glow with the sweet, pure impulses whose prison house they are. With a merry laugh like the silver tinkle of a vesper chime, she entrances the young fellow and awakens the deep seated Platonism of his soul with a magic witchery inexpressibly delicious. Arm in arm they stroll off into the delicate, silver glow from the evening crescent. On they go until the two figures seem to melt into a single speck, and the old bachelor mutters to himself, "that is bliss."

We say that when the fellow who stays at home dreams out such a vision as this, he is willing to cut off his wash bill for a week at the summer resort. But there is another side to the picture. A glimpse is sufficient. It might be labeled "The young man's return." It is candle light; a hot, baked attic room over a dry goods store, the bed is unmade; trunks that have cut the acquaintance of their tops lie at you at odd angles; the young fellow throws his grip on the floor laden with soiled linen and battered hopes. He sighs for a single hour of rest before he shall begin the everlasting drill manual of the yardstick. With a weary lunge he strikes the bed, and the next morning he reads the fellow who stayed at home a weary lecture on "This world is a vain and fleeting show."

Public Speaking.

The candidates for the offices of Judge of the Common Pleas Court and Sheriff of Christian county will address their fellow citizens at the following times and places, viz:

Hinsleytown, Friday, July 20th
Bakers Mill, Friday night, July 20th
Brookside, Saturday, July 21st
Hopkinsville, Saturday night, Aug. 4th

Speaking to commence at 1 o'clock p. m., except night speaking, which will take place promptly at 8 o'clock.

In speaking of the outlook of Indiana, Senator McDonald says: "I believe that the Democratic ticket will carry this State by from 5,000 to 10,000 I have stumped every county in the State and in many counties every township, and I think I am correct in the following estimate of the vote. There will be 240,000 straight Democratic and 235,000 Republican votes. This leaves a floating vote of 25,000 out of that the majority must come it consists of Greenback, Labor and Prohibitionist votes combined. Harrison is weak with the Greenbackers because he has denounced them, calling them idiots and intimating that the asylums ought to be enlarged for their reception. He has little strength with the labor voters. He is not powerful with the Prohibitionists, because, while he is a temperance man personally, he is not a temperance man."

Courtney White, an eleven-year-old boy of Breathitt county, was lodged in the penitentiary at Frankfort Wednesday for having killed his sister with a skillet. He was always quick tempered and irritable and becoming enraged at his sister, caught up a skillet and struck her with all his force on the head with it. It knocked her unconscious and she was cared for and every attention given her, but she died. Courtney was indicted for his crime, had his trial at a recent term of court and was given a life term in the penitentiary for the murder. It was only his extreme youth that saved him from the gallows.

The farmers of Springfield, Ill., have resolved to raise no more wheat, barley or rye for 3 years. This is done in an effort to exterminate the destructive chinch bug which has played such havoc with these cereals. This resolution has been formed by all the principal Crawford county farmers and will be kept to the letter.

The Mills tariff bill will be put to a vote in the House to-morrow morning. The best estimates indicate that the bill will pass by a vote of 161 to 119. The Democrats who will vote against the bill are, Randall and Lowden, of Pennsylvania, Merryman and Greenman, of New York, and Wilkins and Foran, of Ohio.

The eclipses of the Moon Sunday night will begin at 10:20 o'clock and continue till 2 A. M. Its maximum totality will be reached exactly at midnight.

It is rumored that the O. V. surveyors have begun work south of Princeton.

PICKED PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. Cleveland's Private Secretary Col. Daniel Lamont is at work on the National Democratic Campaign Book which he expects to be ready for distribution in ten days or two weeks. The position which Col. Lamont has occupied towards the President renders the work a valuable campaign document.

Though our citizen, the Hon. W. O. Bradley, lost the nomination at the Chicago Convention, the following will show the estimation in which he is still held by his admirers. At the examination of the colored school teachers last Friday, one question put, was, "Name 10 of the most noted men of the United States." One sable-hued instructor of the "young ladies" wrote William O. Bradley following by such lesser lights as Cleveland, Blaine and others.—Danville Advocate.

The Republicans are kicking up a great bobby over the birth of Harrison's new grandchild, and a stranger to the country and its ways would conclude that the affair was a piece of deep statemanship conceived amid the convolutions of the General's own brain and brought to a successful issue under his immediate supervision and advice. A Presidential canvass in this country seems to bring to the surface all the childish traits of our people, but this last is so far the most babyish of all.

The Atlanta correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "There is great interest displayed over the probability of discovering a diamond field twelve miles out of the city. In Clayton county some time ago a farmer discovered a peculiar stone, which he brought to Atlanta for examination. It was sent to New York where $1,800 was paid for it as a diamond. This brought Prof. Calden, a south African diamond miner to the city, and he declares the geologic formation where the diamond was discovered to be the same as that of Kimberly in south Africa. Last night Mr. Heintz came in with another colored diamond and several rare stones, all confirming Calden's theory that it is diamond reef. Atlanta people have been slow to believe that there is a genuine diamond mine within twelve miles of them. They are in a fair way to have their eyes opened. The discovery of a second diamond is regarded as a sure indication that there are more diamonds and plenty of them on the reef."

The statement that the woman, Laura Bell, was married to the late Gov. Bramlette, of this State, is erroneous. This woman, who has recently returned to Louisville to re-engage in her nefarious trade, was formerly a well-known courtesan of Louisville. As Laura White and Laura Bell she was one of the wildest and most extravagant of her class. Her name was constantly before the public, and especially did she become notorious after she formed a liaison with Gov. Bramlette.

The woman's insolence was phenomenal. In a great procession of Masons on June 4, one of the finest and largest celebrations of St. John's day by the Masons of Louisville, a prominent feature of the procession was Laura Bell, flaunting her charms in an open barouche. She would not leave the procession until a force of policemen was summoned.

When Gov. Bramlette died a police force had to be called to prevent Laura Bell from disturbing the ceremonies at the funeral. After his death this woman undertook to blackmail Mrs. Bramlette, setting up a claim that she herself was the lawful wife of Gov. Bramlette, and that she had a right to a share in his estate. After leading a life of precarious adventure in Washington, New York, and even in Europe, as she says, Laura Bell has returned to Louisville. She has been furnishing a house. So she evidently expects to stay.—Louisville Times.

A graduate of the seminary at Clarksville is making quite a reputation in the field of letters. The lady is the wife of Mr. George O. Gilmer, who resides at Pass Christian, Miss. Mrs. Gilmer has quickly secured an enviable reputation as a magazine writer, but more particularly for dialect stories. She is quite young, and displays a certain charming vivacity in all her productions. She was born and passed her childhood days on the Woodstock farm, near Trenton,—on the line between Kentucky and Tennessee—a big farm, famous for its race horse breeding, its blooded stock and fine cattle. It was a boast for many years that none but thoroughbred animals ever set foot on its pasture lands or found shelter in its stables. No mule was ever allowed there, and cattle whose ancestry were not enrolled in the American Hand Book were not tolerated. Here, among the thoroughbreds of Woodstock, Mrs. Gilmer romped and played and grew, under the particular care of her "old black mammy," with Joice and Chloe and many another dark companion whose real talk and whose characters she has frequently woven into her writings. And here the quaint and shrewd "Jell" was wont to pour into her eager ears remembered stories of the times, in the good old days before the war, when he was a jockey and rode famous horses who made records in four-mile heats; and here Jeff taught her to ride by tossing her up on the back of Fraxinella, an aged mare retired from the race track, who was honored with sixty Arabian crosses in her pedigree. Her taste for literature and newspaper work is natural. When only 12 years of age she was editor and proprietor and the sole contributor to a school journal called the Gospel, which created a sensation when ever it appeared.
